

PILCHARD INN

— BURGH ISLAND —

1336

The Pilchard Inn on Burgh Island is often referred to as a 'part-time' island because as the tide recedes it leaves a causeway of golden sand. It is said to date back to 1336, and it is also thought that the island was at one time inhabited by monks, engaged in quiet contemplation. The Inn may have been used for the brewing of mead as well as a lodging house for visitors to the monastery. In the 18th century smugglers and wreckers hid on the island, secure for a time each day when the tides protected them from law enforcing excisemen. The island was the smuggling domain of the most notorious smuggler Tom Crocker who gave his name to a cave on the coast of the island and spent most of the time when he wasn't at sea in the Pilchard Inn. Tom Crocker's cave is on the western coast on the island and at some stage there was a tunnel that led from this cave to the cellar of the Pilchard Inn, but both ends are now bricked up. After a lengthy career, Tom was shot by the revenue men on the 14th August (exact year unknown) in the porch of the Pilchard Inn. There are ruins of a former chapel which then became a 'huers hut'. Where a watchman would look out for shoals of pilchards and then make a hue and cry to local fishermen waiting in boats.
